

For the sake of memory

We figured that twenty years from now you will have forgotten much that happened in 1949-50. And so we thought that before putting our yearbook to press, we'd type you this note about the more easily forgotten incidents and characteristics of this school term and clip it here in your book so you wouldn't have to tax your memory.

It's really been an unusual year, you know—the year the new driver-training car arrived; the term the Mixed Chorus sold anything from dill pickles to candy apples and as a result finally got their new robes; the first year for a homecoming game; the first time for Kids' Day, during which juniors and seniors took over city and county offices; and the first year a prom king was chosen to reign with the queen.

The school building received a minor "face lifting" this year. The halls and lockers upstairs were painted white, and new green blackboards were installed in several rooms.

The girls led the fashions this term. They wore form-fitting skirts twelve inches from the floor, cut their hair short, and tied silk scarves around their necks, cowboy fashion. The yo-yo sex also sported shoes with crepe soles and tied them with chains instead of shoe strings. They sparkled in their flashy (and how!) T-shirts.

New teachers—Messrs. Lurtey, Bolam, Anderson, and Pearson—graced the halls, and Mr. Clark replaced Mr. Crouse as principal at mid-year.

Whrrrr! Whrrrr!

Fire! Fire!

No, wait. Don't rush out to see where the big red truck is going, because you would be a little late. It was in 1897 that the high school building was first gutted by fire, but the walls were left standing and were used for the new building.

While construction was being completed, the pupils pursued their studies anywhere—in vacant buildings, homes, churches, city hall, and the court house. Once again the town had a school, which was used until February 6, 1903, when it too was destroyed by fire which was said to have started in the school's laboratory. There was a strong wind, and again it was too much for the fire department. The loss of the nineteen-room school and the gymnasium was estimated at $35,000.

The south section of the present building was constructed in 1904. The north section, the old gym, and the swimming pool were added in 1914. In 1929 the present gymnasium was erected—last of the major remodeling to a school with an eventful past.

Scene of Classes . . . Sales . . . Fun

To the Man

Behind the School

Our Constitution makes it the duty of the General Assembly "to provide, by law, for a general and uniform system of common schools, wherein tuition shall be without charge and equally open to all."

The taxpaying citizen contributes to the support of the school by paying taxes of many types and in many forms—both state and local. The average student may not realize that the library dictionary he used to look up that hard word was provided by the property tax paid by his father.

But our citizen does much more than pay the required taxes. His willing contributions to a hundred school sales projects make possible the spice of school—the extra-curricular activities. Although school could go on with just the routine of classes, the students would miss the advantages of responsibility and fun in producing a class play, in writing for publications, and in thrilling to sports competition. Sale of season tickets, subscriptions, class play and concert admissions are only a few of the solicitations aided by our generous public-spirited citizen.

Loyal patrons of the school have made possible a broad and enjoyable education for approximately 1,400 students enrolled this year in the schools of Hartford City.

The members of the 1950 RETRO staff gratefully dedicate this yearbook to these loyal supporters, and hereby dub each one with the well-deserved title of

The detailed task of budgeting and appropriating the tax funds provided by True Blue Citizens falls to the Board of Education, shown here in one of their meetings with Supt. E. P. Blackburn, left. They are George Fulton, Cecil Gough, and Clifford Kraning.

Part of it comes by student projects . . .

School projects for making money include such things as seniors pounding the pavement and ringing doorbells to sell Retro subscriptions . . . Patrons of concession stands contribute their nickels and dimes at the cage games . . . Raising money for the five programs and fun night is only part of the work for the Student Council . . . Candy apples were sold to hungry students at noon and evening by the Mixed Chorus members to raise money to buy new robes . . . Teachers helped the cause by collecting money from football fans at the two gates at the Sigma Phi Gamma Field.

... and more from state and local taxes

Both state and local taxation constitute the backbone of public education . . . Property tax, paid by check or cash, is one source of school support which is obtained locally . . . Adults, as Miss Ruth Cole here, send letters to the state tax office enclosing income tax which must be filed before January 31 . . . Determining the amount of money received from the state towards school support are the attendance reports which Miss Leila Lewis checks carefully before submitting . . . Retail customers help in another way by purchasing taxed items at stores. Money received from such goods is added to the school support fund.

It couldn't happen without True Blue Citizens

BY TAXATION

An immeasurable and significant effect of the TRUE BLUE CITIZEN'S tax dollars is seen in a finished product when the last strains of music on Graduation Day fade away and the gowned figures slowly but surely exit into the world to make something of themselves—their way of thanking the taxpayer for starting them on their way.

But to realize the thrill of diploma day, you must be exposed to innumerable experiences provided by those tax dollars. Your classroom instruction is paid from this source. The library from which you get your history report, the band which thrills you at ball games, the chorus whose carols stimulate that Christmas spirit, and all the thousand daily school incidents from loafing to learning are provided by that big-hearted collective public figure, the tax-paying TRUE BLUE CITIZEN.

So, for the many benefits pictured within this section, we say sincerely, humbly, and loudly—Thanks, T. B. C.

The True Blue Citizen—as an adult—boosts educational opportunities by paying personal and property tax.

As problems arise in planning their programs, students, as Harold Van Gordon and Ronnie Richards do here, turn to Mr. Clark, principal, to "set them on the right track."

Checking scholastic records of students here is Mr. Myron Clark, principal, as he looks through his office filing cabinet.

Miss Trella Borden, assistant principal, keeps the telephone busy while checking attendance problems with parents.

Planning for the future is Mr. E. P. Blackburn, superintendent of city schools, as he inspects the blueprints for the new top-floor chemistry laboratory.

ADMINISTRATION

Preserve pupils' records Keep careful eye on expenses
Plan new building improvements Help solve student problems

Miss Leila Lewis, superintendent's secretary, looks at our school ledgers.

Jean Lanning, book store manager, plows through records of sales.

While Fred Sills and Bob Scheidler prove the efficiency of pulleys, Bob Liniger, Dave Mahorney, Eleanor Dell, and Carolyn Shrack observe their progress. Physics students learn pulleys are used because they provide mechanical advantages and because they change the direction of force.

CLASSWORK

Doing the assignments . . . Reciting lessons . . .

Miriam Baker is learning to improve her diction by making a recording of it, then listening to the playback. Jerry Davis holds the mike for her while Jill Shaw tunes the recorder. Following the script is Bill Hammond while Bill Bobo, also in Mrs. Wallace's class, looks on.

In the school print shop, which is supervised by Mr. Edgar Henderson, Don Snyder feeds the job press while Ollie Furnish is busy checking pads of office forms.

Bill Robertson has learned to saw a piece of wood without splitting it, under the supervision of Mr. John Carbone. The boys make small pieces of furniture, such as stands and bookcases, as well as making repairs on the building.

Taking two-hour exams . . . Making A's (?)

While discussing nature in all its glory, Mr. Robert Anderson, biology instructor, shows Theresa Norris, Faith Ann Hile, Sylvia Overmyer, Eddie Schermerhorn, and Harold Hiser what an ivy leaf looks like.

"Learning the job" might well be the motto of student teacher Miss Elaine Lacey, from Ball State College. In the advanced shorthand class she is pointing out a few characters written by the girls in shorthand.

Vocalizing . . . Visual Education

• Future twirlers start young to learn to do "just right." Rita Rathburn here watches drum major Betty Markin give a baton lesson to her nephew, Larry Crump. Waiting their turn are Sandra Kirkwood and Jean Lipp.

• Ruth Mary Ward, editor, and Rena Jones, assistant, recheck the copy that has been written for the forthcoming issue of the "Inkdrip," junior high publication. Make-up editor Bobby Cavanaugh discusses the layout with Miss Mabel Fee, adviser to the staff and English instructor.

• Preparing for their next appearance at the half-time musical display, Director Harlan Kerlin takes the band through its scales, measures, sharps and flats on into the marches, popular tunes and classical selections.

• To promote better understanding of past, present, and future events of the world, the school program includes audio-visual education. Watching a movie on social studies here is Miss Ruth Cole's history class.

• (Top) Starting out on their careers in music early in their school life are these junior high vocalists. Under the able direction of Miss Esther Nesbit, they go "singing along."

• (Center) According to the Dewey Decimal system, books and cards should be kept in a particular order. Aiding Miss Edith Chalfant in this endeavor are Marilyn Myers and Connie Strine, who are just two of the eleven student librarians.

• (Bottom Right) During the summer the school still goes on. Pursuing knowledge of the fine art of sewing are the girls of the summer clothing class. Miss Margaret Schaefer supervises the stitching.

Row 4: Lowell Daisley, James Bates, Jack Gilland, Phillip Kingsley, Kaye Casterline.

From the first appearance of the band at the football games until the last strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" fade away, the band, made up of fifty-four members, is one busy group. Entering in contests is an important activity of the band. In the 1949-50 school year they won first division in a marching contest at Auburn in a Class B rating. Approximately twenty-five members entered the solo and ensemble contest at Kokomo, with nearly twenty placing in first division. Later the group won first division in the district contest held in Hartford City.

STUDENT COUNCIL At basketball games—'The Pause that refreshes' School program planners . . . Student body representatives

As a Council project, President Bob Scheidler packs a Christmas box which will be opened by some happy European child.

Red Cross boxes, governing the student body, and school welfare projects are each year brought into public view by the Student Council. Sending boxes overseas to needy children is an annual project of the Council, which also sponsors several clean-up days to make the school buildings and lawn look better.

Student problems occupy a major part in the business of the twenty-four Student Council representatives, who meet on Thursday morning of each week. The Council, led by Mr. Walter Pearson, Mr. Myron Clark, and Miss Margaret Schaefer, also annually holds a circus, all free, which students attend in large numbers. Each of the student body governors has an alternate who takes the regular's place in case of absence.

FAMILIAR SCENES

Weekday school schedule . . . Getting absentee excuses . . .
Candy bar, please . . . The 1949 Retro . . . Dairy lunches

- (Upper Left) Leroy Brown, Earl Townsend, and Marilyn Needler buy their "dessert" at noon from Bill Wilcoxon and Faith Hile.
- (Lower Left) Signing their "John Henry's" on the '49 Retros are students Ruth Miller, Valorie Hollis, Jackie Kirkwood, Anne Sullivan, and Marilyn Williams.
- (Upper Right) Max Lennon, Hal McConnaughey, Bill Burns, Phil Kingsley, Dean Rinker, and Bill McGriff prove that they can do more than one thing at the same time by eating their dairy lunch while watching the noon league.
- (Middle Right) Miss Trella Borden puts her O.K. on excuses.
- (Lower Right) Ollie Furnish and Don Willman letter the bulletin board for the week.

EVERYDAY EVENTS

Noon Doghouse rush . . . Sleepy school bus riders . . .
Library . . . Fixing 'Tweet's' 'car' . . . Driver training

DAILY DOINGS

*Raising the flag . . . Umbrella nights . . . Snow scenes . . .
Sampling popcorn . . . Gals and guys in basement conferences*

- (Top Left) "Smelling a rat," Doris Van Horn peers over the shoulder of Bill Robertson, who has just snatched a handful of the corn she and Betty Crawford have popped for sale during a basketball game.
- (Top Right) Gary Sinclair raises "Old Glory."
- (Bottom Left) Romantically inclined, Sylvia Overmeyer, Bob Wright, Jack Campbell, Peggy Newberry, Barbara Kimmel and Jack Walton have a gab session in the hall before going to class.
- (Middle Right) Students hurry home through the very damp rain.
- (Bottom Right) As the snow falls, students gleefully form a human chain to slide on the ice.

ROUTINE

*Oh, that 'Jimmy!' . . . A horse on Bob . . . 'Report' to 7th period . . .
 'It works this way' . . . Bus time for the Airedales . . . Fast fire drill*

• (Top Left) Marilyn Williams, Nancy Dixon, Doris Tucker and Jackie Kirkwood find it hard to concentrate on sharpening their pencils in the room of young (bachelor) teacher, Mr. James Lurtey. • (Top Right) Realizing his mistake too late, Bob Hines struggles in vain to remove the "horse" prop from his table he made in wood shop. • (Middle Left) Mr. Clark "ad libs" to the student body at a pep session. • (Middle Right) Diligent boys work on their lessons during noon hour, as kibitzers munch candy. • (Lower Middle Left) The football team gets a send-off from students as they go to battle out-of-town opponents. • (Bottom Left) Mr. Frazier answers the "whys" about the new movie projector to the student operators. • (Bottom Right) After "playing it safe" students file into building after fire drill.

*Trampoline Stars . . . Chorus benefit show . . . Circus . . .

- (Upper Left) Everybody "getting into the act," some mixed choristers make candy to raise money for their new robes. • (Upper Right) Y-Teens dive into their sack lunch following their swimming party.
- (Center Left) Causing many laughs were the clowns at the circus sponsored by the Student Council.
- (Center) Theresa Norris, Carol Herbaugh, and Marianna Baker sell ribbons at the homecoming game.
- (Center Right) Gerald Emshwiller leads Minnehaha (Gloria Messner) on stage at the annual city Halloween Party. • (Angled Photo) The mixed chorus entertains the movie goers at the benefit show, "Christopher Columbus." • (Circle) Miss Jackie Kirkwood is crowned Pumpkin Queen at the Halloween Festival.
- (Lower Left) Seniors line up for chow at a party. • (Lower Right) Jim Sorensen tries his hand at jumping on the trampoline during a program given by Trampoline Stars.

VACATION SIGNS

*Chorus carolers . . . Vacation baseball . . . Xmas programs . . .
Those final, fateful grade cards . . . Swimming at Lake Placid*

• (Upper Left) Creating the Christmas spirit, the mixed chorus sings carols in the halls. • (Upper Right) Student splashers keep cool in the summer while swimming in Lake Placid • (Middle) Joe Powell "hits one to right field" in summer baseball league. • (Lower Left) Marlene Ault serves as narrator for the Student Council Christmas program. • (Lower Right) At the end of the semester Mr. Bolam, Mr. Lurtey, and Mr. Hirsch wearily put grades on report cards.

BIG DAYS

Vaccinating time . . . JB X-Ray unit . . . visiting Donald Kiphart*

ALUMNI NIGHT

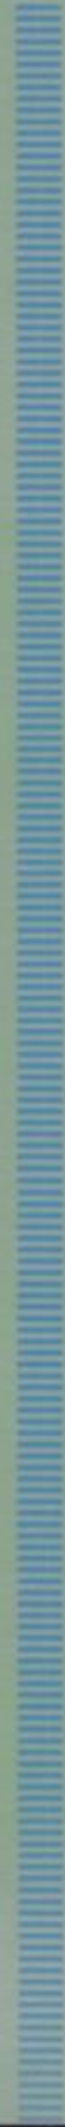

*First HCHS Homecoming . . . Good game—although we lost . . .
Gym dancing . . . H-Club flowers . . . Crowning the queen*

BY SOLICITATION

Mere classes could fill up school from September to May, thanks to the money the loyal patrons have kicked in toward taxes, but something valuable would be missing with such a routine. Dairy lunches, sports of all kinds, class plays, band concerts, and publications work would find no place in school life if it were not for extra contributions made by the TRUE BLUE CITIZEN.

Not only recreation and pastimes are provided but also responsibility, leadership, honesty, and "hidden abilities" are discovered through activities resulting from the coins tossed in the direction of the school by generous citizens solicited for a hundred and one projects.

These benefits—and good times—could not possibly be gained just by reading all the books assigned by the teachers—even with "A" in all lessons. This section of this book features school activities whose existence is due chiefly to solicitations and sales of various kinds during the school year.

The True Blue Citizen—as a youth—contributes his share by buying a dairy lunch.

Composing Hartford High's first golf team were Glen Jones, Jack Bates, Tom Lightle, Gail Hornbaker, and Jack Beeson.

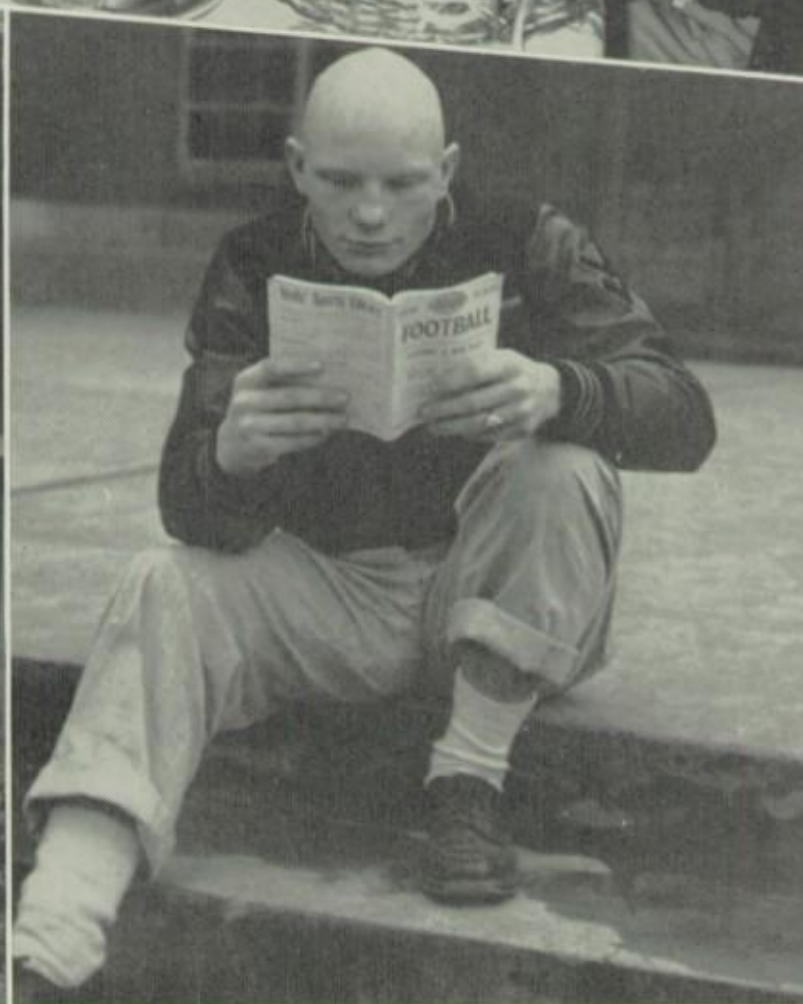

Representing Hartford High last spring for the first time on the golf links were a group of five underclassmen. Although they placed second-to-last at the CIC meet, these golfers made a fine showing for the limited experience they had. These Weeks-coached boys tried the sport between caddy jobs at the local Country Club during the summer. This newcomer has all the earmarks of becoming a popular sport for the students.

RETRO

Selecting a theme . . . Posing and taking of pictures . . . Mounting . . .
Retakes . . . Getting first proofs . . . Pasting up dummy—It's finished

Sometimes it drives you nuts . . .

You're on the Retro staff. You're thrilled. You somehow know this year will be the best. In the Retro room you see coke bottles, a radio, and a swivel chair. "This is the life," you think. Then the work begins.

You take a group of pictures on the deadline day. You have worked hard, and they seem promising. Eagerly you take the film from the camera. Then you look at the photographer. "Gee, I just remember. I forgot to cock the shutter," he chokes.

You have trouble mounting pictures. The layout you planned for a page looks "tops." Carefully you trim the pictures and hold them up for inspection. "Eek! the principal," you gasp. "I've just decapitated him!"

You announce a staff meeting. Each member is informed personally. The meeting time comes. You hurry to the room. Five of the seventeen journalists are there.

You stay awake nights worrying, and you spend your vacations working in a room where you can't see your co-workers for their frosted breath. You continually run a race against Father Time. Then you start cutting out paper dolls and uttering strange noises—yes, you're going crazy.

You look at your hands, cut and bleeding from razor blades that slipped while mounting pictures. You recall the panels of pictures that had to be sent to the engraver three or four times before he fixed them the way you had plainly told him to do. You remember the numerous times you threw yourself on a table spread with pictures to hide them while some junior lazily sauntered by. You scream. You know you've been knocked "off your beam."

Then you see the finished product. All your labors are over. You're thrilled again. Your past troubles fade away. You're happy. You realize all the experience you have gained and the fun you've had. You feel ready to meet the future. Yes, it's been wonderful working on the Retro.

. . . but it's worth all the headaches

Barbara Kimmel and Bill Wilcoxon, queen and king of the Retro dance, team up.

1949-50 JUNIOR PLAY

- (Upper Left) Carol Knoderer awakens Bill Burns from a deep slumber.
- (Upper Right) John Cheesman hopes for a happy landing as he leaps on his davenport bed.
- (Middle Right) "Porky Pig's" appearance amazes them all.
- (Lower Left) The assembled cast.
- (Lower Right) Jim McClain gets "made-up" for his part.

"January Thaw" was the name of the play selected by the juniors presented in November under the direction of Mr. Philip Hirsch. Taking place in an old farmhouse, the drama centered around Mother Gage, played by Carol Knoderer, who remodeled coffee grinders into lamps, and Father Gage, in the form of Bill Burns, who tried to write a best seller in a blitz of interruptions.

Other members of the cast included Wanda Schuller, Marilynn Schwaner, Hal McConnaughey, Kaye Casterline, Marjorie Sims, Carol Tobey, John Cheesman, Jim McClain, Bill Green, Bob Ford, and Charles Leslie. Profit on the production was nearly $200.

DRAMA

*Grease paint make-up . . . Stage settings . . . Qualmy feelings . . .
Waiting . . . Entrance . . . Exit . . . Applause : . . And Curtain Calls*

Comedy dealing with high school life was the theme of the '49 senior class play, presented April 19 and 20 under the direction of Mr. Phil Hirsch.

"We Shook the Family Tree" had, as the leading lady, Zella Bantz, who played the part of Hildegard, who nearly turned the town upside down when she decided she no longer wanted to be a wallflower. Also in the drama were Gerald Leech, Jo Ann Norris, Joan Hiser, Joe Cronin, Tom Pattison, Lois Lake, Ann Herbaugh, Darleen Risinger, Bill Smith, Dick Poivre, and Rosie McKee.

The characters in the play were typical products of high school—a boy who had a passion for fishing, a boy who invented "useful" gadgets, a high school boy who wears knickers, and a mischief-making little girl named Paige, who even ate a tube of toothpaste. Approximately $160 was cleared from the production.

'49 SENIOR CLASS PLAY

- (Circle) Joe Cronin mistakenly downs Dick Poivre while shocked Rosie McKee and Ann Herbaugh look on.
- (Upper Right) Testing sound effects is Bill Gosselink, stage manager.
- (Lower Right) The cast "takes a bow" at the end of a performance.

High school girls went "off their beams" this year and stayed in line all night to get front row seats at basketball games. Debates (or should we say disputes?) on mercy killing, the hydrogen bomb, Communism, and the coal strike were red hot. Old Man Winter was easy on everyone this year until the coal strike in March. Dreams of a vacation were smashed when a local company presented the school with coal galore.

Everything wasn't smooth sailing. On a certain fateful day the Portland Panthers made it another sectional loss for the Airedales. Speaking of basketball, this was the first year for the three-minute rule, which provided that after the last three minutes of the game, the team that is fouled got the ball out-of-bounds.

But many things never change. Romances, as usual, sprang up—and died. Some students were still kept off the honor roll by those humiliating cuts in citizenship. Pupils, as usual, misspelled their maladies on their excuse slips. The main problem in study hall was still to keep awake, and the Dog House continued to aid in warding off student starvation. The usual number of broken-down vehicles lined the school streets, and the late birds still received those fatal pink three-and-a-third tardy slips.

Yes, considering everything, it's been a wonderful year. A lot of the headaches will be forgotten in the future. There will be other years to win the tourney, to change that C to an A, to attend class parties, and to be a member of the big school family—for everyone, that is, but eighty-eight seniors.
